School Leaver Program

Age you can leave school

In the most important education change in 40 years, the WA Parliament passed legislation in November 2005 to raise the school leaving age.

The school leaving age rose from 15 to 16 years of age in 2006 and will rise again from 16 to 17 years of age on 1st January 2008.

This does not mean that you have to stay at school but it does mean that doing nothing is no longer an option. If school is not the best option for you, you may seek permission to attend a TAFEWA college or other registered training organisation, gain an apprenticeship or traineeship or work in a job which will improve your job prospects.

What is the School Leaver program?

It aims to help young people make their career transition from school to:

- further education
- further training
- apprenticeships or traineeships
- employment
- other options.

We can deliver workshops in schools on:

- career exploration
- apprenticeships and traineeships
- transition from school to further education
- employability skills
- Parents as Career Partners
- other career related topics.

Who can access the School Leaver program?

- school students
- school leavers
- parents/guardians
- teachers and schools.

What services does the School Leaver program offer?

We can help you with:

- career guidance
- job search techniques
- applying for jobs
- addressing selection criteria
- writing resumes
- interview techniques
- work experience.

We also have information about:

- careers and occupations
- education courses
- training opportunities
- apprenticeships and traineeships
- jobs.
